

Young Scholars Conference in Russian and East European Studies Tel Aviv University, Isreal, June 5, 2016

The Israeli Inter-University Academic Partnership in Russian and East European Studies is an innovative institutional platform for sharing, exchanging and disseminating knowledge among Israel's five leading universities. With the support of the Humanities Fund (established by YadHa'Nadiv and approved by the Council for Higher Education) the partnership provides funding and institutional infrastructure for cross-disciplinary teaching, research and publication in East European studies in Israel. The partnership coordinates academic resources from the five universities and creates a wide and diverse community of scholars which benefits from the professional specializations at each university while broadening the overall study of this region.

In its efforts to provide an academic home for young scholars in the field and to offer researchers an opportunity to share their findings, the partnership calls on young scholars in the Humanities and Social Sciences to participate in its fourth annual inter-disciplinary conference. The conference committee accepts applications from scholars across many disciplines (including but not limited to history, literature, religion, sociology, anthropology, political science and law) provided that their research focuses on Russia and East-Central Europe.

Applicants are requested to submit their curriculum vitae (no longer than three pages), and a proposal of up to 500 words.
Independently organized panels are welcome
